The Useless Young Man.

This is a bad season for the young man who lives on his father. In fact, it may be said that when the snows come and the north wind blows the young man's occupation vanishes. Like the bear and the ground hog, the young man hibernates until the coming of the spring. There is one vital point of difference, however, between the bear and the young man. The bear lives during the winter off the riches that he has labored through the summer to store inside his shaggy fur, while the young man, who toils not through the summer, subsists on the results of his father's brains and industry. Yet Solomon, in all the glory of a past age, was not arrayed like one of these young men. If he had been, his reputation for wisdom would have taken wings and soared away. It may be argued that if the young man is not very useful he does not cost very much to keep. Usually he may be found seeking sustenance at the end of a streets, closely watched by the police him. lest he should make indecent remarks to some poor but respectable shop girl.

These are unfavorable days for the young man. The weather is too do not need him, the escort bureau ensued: is a failure and ambitious mammas are paying more attention to young men who know how to earn a decent living. During the winter he is of no apparent use, and his unfortunate father puts up margins on him, like a bad investment, hoping for a boom in that branch of stock. Whether that will ever come is a mystery of the future. What becomes of the young man in after life is a mystery as well. Two or three years after his first appearance he loses his identity and merges into the great throng that is always hurrying into the distance without thought or aim. On that dim horizon of life he vanishes and is fogotten.-Philadelphia Times.

DISEASED LUNGS ARE GREATLY ON AN IN-CHEASE IN THIS COUNTRY.-The sudden changing of the weather has done much to give rise to Consumption. But there are thousands of cases who bring it on by their own imprudence—such as wearing damp clothing, and going from the warm room into the cold air, and checking the perspiration, which causes irritation of the lungs, and then matter or phiegm will collect, which nature will try to relieve by coughing it up, to prevent pestules from formingr If nature does not raise the matter with ease, and stop this inflamation, tubercles follow. The Prettiest Woman in Paris.

Paris Letter to the Boston Transcript. tion. I saw her in the box at the opera the other night, looking the very type of perfect, if soulless, loveliness. In feature she resembles greatly the portraits of Mme. Recamier. The eyes are of a deep, lovely blue, the nose aquiline, the mouth small and shaped like cupid's bow. The exquisitely shaped head is set to perfection on the white, rounded throat, and the shoulders in mold and in coloring would put to shame the most artistic form that ever was sculptured in marble. would be divine.
